About the Symposium

This unique course is designed for the practicing urologist, gynecologist, and colorectal surgeon interested in updating his/her knowledge in the diagnosis, evaluation, and management of female pelvic floor disorders. It is a multi-disciplinary program presented by experienced faculty in the fields of female urology, urogynecology and colorectal surgery.

This year's symposium will focus on new developments in pelvic reconstructive surgery, including debates and controversial issues. There will be ample time for discussion and interaction between the participants and nationally recognized faculty.

As a result of attending this activity, physicians will be better able to:

- Work with other pelvic floor specialists in treating pelvic floor dysfunction upon understanding concept of the pelvic floor as a functional unit.
- Increase the scope of diagnostic testing after reviewing the evaluation modalities for various symptoms of pelvic floor dysfunction and QoL tools.
- Decrease the rate of graft erosions/infections by understanding the proper usage and indications for graft usage tailored to each patient.
- Expand surgical modalities for incontinence and prolapse based on an improved understanding of surgical procedures proven to be beneficial in treating pelvic floor problems.
